

Famous Masterpieces Improved By Ginger Cat With Attitude

The world's most famous paintings have been given a feline makeover, thanks to a ginger cat with attitude.

The cat, named Marmalade, belongs to artist Sarah Jane Morris. Morris has been posting photos of Marmalade on her Instagram account, @gingercatmarmalade, for several years. Marmalade has quickly become a social media sensation, thanks to his grumpy expression and his love of art.

In her latest series of photos, Morris has superimposed Marmalade onto some of the world's most famous paintings. The results are hilarious and thought-provoking.

In one photo, Marmalade is sitting on the Mona Lisa's lap. The Mona Lisa looks amused, while Marmalade looks like he's about to growl.

In another photo, Marmalade is perched on the head of Vincent van Gogh's self-portrait. Van Gogh looks resigned to his fate, while Marmalade looks like he's about to pounce.

Morris says that she started superimposing Marmalade onto famous paintings as a way to make people laugh.

"I love art, and I love cats," Morris says. "I thought it would be fun to combine the two."

Morris's photos have been met with widespread acclaim. People all over the world are delighted by Marmalade's grumpy expression and his love of art.

"Marmalade is the best thing that's ever happened to art," one fan wrote on Instagram.

"I love how Marmalade makes me look at famous paintings in a new way," another fan wrote.

Morris says that she's glad that Marmalade's photos are bringing joy to people.

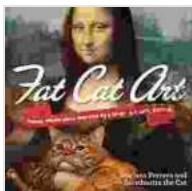

"I hope that my photos make people smile," Morris says. "I also hope that they inspire people to look at art in a new way."

If you're a fan of art, cats, or both, then you'll love Marmalade's photos. You can follow Marmalade on Instagram @gingercatmarmalade.

Marmalade's photos have been featured in several publications, including The Huffington Post, BuzzFeed, and The Daily Mail.

Morris has also published a book of Marmalade's photos, titled Famous Masterpieces Improved By Ginger Cat With Attitude.

The book is available on Our Book Library and other online retailers.
