Probate is the legal process of administering the estate of a deceased person. It involves identifying and valuing the deceased person's assets, paying their debts, and distributing their remaining assets to their heirs or beneficiaries. Probate can be a complex and time-consuming process, but it is essential to ensure that the deceased person's wishes are carried out and that their assets are distributed fairly.

Florida Probate Rules And Statutes provides a comprehensive overview of the legal framework governing probate in Florida. This essential resource for attorneys, fiduciaries, and beneficiaries covers everything from the initial stages of probate to the final distribution of assets.

Initial Stages of Probate

The first step in the probate process is to file a petition with the probate court. The petition must include the following information:

- The name of the deceased person
- The date of the deceased person's death
- The county in which the deceased person resided at the time of their death
- The names and addresses of the deceased person's heirs or beneficiaries
- A copy of the deceased person's will, if any

Once the petition is filed, the probate court will appoint a personal representative to administer the estate. The personal representative is responsible for gathering the deceased person's assets, paying their debts, and distributing their remaining assets to their heirs or beneficiaries.

- Identify and value the deceased person's assets
- Pay the deceased person's debts
- File a final accounting with the probate court
- Distribute the deceased person's remaining assets to their heirs or beneficiaries

The probate administration process can take several months or even years to complete. During this time, the personal representative must keep the heirs or beneficiaries informed of the progress of the estate administration.

Probate Litigation

Probate litigation is a legal proceeding that can be filed by any interested party. Probate litigation can be used to challenge the validity of a will, to remove a personal representative, or to seek an accounting of the estate administration.
