Early Life

Napoleon Bonaparte was born on August 15, 1769, in Ajaccio, Corsica. His father, Carlo Bonaparte, was a lawyer, and his mother, Letizia Ramolino, was a devout Catholic. Napoleon was the second of eight children. He had a difficult childhood, and he was often bullied by his older brother, Joseph. Napoleon was a bright student, and he excelled in mathematics and history. He attended military school in Brienne-le-Château and then in Paris. In 1785, he graduated from military school and was commissioned as a second lieutenant in the French army.

Emperor of France

He established the Napoleonic Code, which reformed the French legal system, and he introduced a number of other reforms that modernized France. However, Napoleon's ambitions ultimately led to his downfall. In 1812, he invaded Russia with a massive army. The invasion was a disaster, and Napoleon's army was decimated by the cold weather and the Russian army. Napoleon was forced to retreat from Russia, and he never fully recovered from the defeat.

Downfall and Exile

In 1813, Napoleon was defeated by a coalition of European powers at the Battle of Leipzig. He was forced to abdicate his throne and was exiled to the island of Elba. In 1815, Napoleon escaped from Elba and returned to France. He rallied his supporters and briefly regained power.
